JUSTICE HORTON ENDORSED

Judge Cooley Says His Decision in the Gunn Case Was Good.

The decision written by Chief Justice Horton in the Gunn case growing out of the political struggle for the control of the Kansas legislature in 1893, was quoted fully in the settlement of the recent controversy in New Jersey, the court of that state taking substantially the same ground as in the Gunn case.

Since the New Jersey case was decided, Judge Horton has received the following letter from Judge Thomas M. Cooley, of Ann Arbor:

"The criticism made by your decision in the legislative case never, so far as I could see, affected in the least the public sentiment of the country, either in the profession or out of it. The decision was sound and right, and the common sense of the country had no difficulty in recognizing that fact. The decision in the New Jersey case is on the same lines and is also sound and right. I never expected anything different from that court. The able lawyers of the country who belong to the same political party with a majority of the judges would have been surprised and shocked, I am sure, by a different decision."

OVER THE VETO.

Sound Making Efforts to Pass His Bill—Others Sustain Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The question of passing the Bland silver seigniorage bill over President Cleveland's veto was to have come before the house today, and active preparations have been made by the elements for and against the president's proposition. Representative Tracey (Dem., N. Y.) sent 174 letters to Democratic members who could be relied upon to sustain the president.

The letter is as follows: "Mr. Bland has given notice that Tuesday, April 3rd, he will ask to have the seigniorage bill passed over the president's veto. I am directed by the minority members of the committee on coinage, weights, and measures, to urge you to be present in the house that day and to remain until the vote has been taken."

"Respectfully yours,
"CHARLES TRACEY."

There is every probability, however, that the contest over the veto will be put off, owing to the deadlock over the contested election cases. Representative Tracey says the veto will be sustained by a large vote. "It will not be far short of two hundred if there is a full house," said he. "There will be the vote of those against the bill in the first place, and the added vote of those who wish to sustain the president, although formerly favorable to the bill."

"If the Republicans do not vote," said Mr. Bland, "I think we can pass the bill over the veto by a two-thirds vote of the Democrats, but if the Republicans vote they will sustain the veto."

Mr. Tracey says it is absolutely certain that the Republicans will vote.

LONG DRAWN OUT.

No Prospect of This Session of Congress Ending

Before Next October at the Outside.

IT IS ALL NONSENSE

To Try to Make Cleveland Favor Silver.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—[Special.]—If the past fortnight is to be taken as a measure of progress, then instead of reaching an adjournment in July the present session will lap over and far into the next and leave a great deal of unfinished business at that. The dreary monotony of roll calls, the ringing of bells to call members from committee rooms and the rushing of messengers hither and yon to hunt up the absent members, the principal sources of amusement to onlookers, and it is a sort of amusement of which a very little goes a great way.

Among the live questions about the capitol is this, "Why do the Democrats have so much difficulty in maintaining a quorum?" There are two answers. One is: "Because they have such a brutal majority." Each fellow thinks he can leave at will and it will make no difference, and the city members are particularly bad—a very large number of them being feverish to get away Friday afternoon and unwilling to return until Tuesday. The fact is, we haven't got our big majority well organized and disciplined yet." So say the Democrats. The Republicans put it thus: "The majority of the majority have got up a mass of stuff which the minority of that majority doesn't want to see adopted, and yet does not want to break party lines and vote against the bill. The contested election case of O'Neill against Joy. The fair minded Democrats don't want to turn out Mr. Joy and yet they don't want to vote against a report of their own committee."

A Republican View.
Mr. McCall of Massachusetts says: "The Democrats are not in the house because their hearts are not in it, which was cut out for them. They want a reform of the tariff, and they don't want a general onslaught on everything that is distinctly northern and northeastern. When, however, an opinion is asked of such Republicans as General Crovener and Henderson, they have the same old explanation—the total depravity of Democrats and their inborn, inherent, irremediable incapacity to govern the country. Whatever the reason may be, it is certain that the dominant party is burning daylight, and the leaders are getting extremely nervous about it, as a great many important measures are still to be discussed, and on at least three of them—the Hatch anti-trust bill leading—the fight is to be terrific."

The various McGinn bills to protect labor, or at least the substantial ones, have been pretty well ground through the judiciary committee, and Messrs. Boatner of Louisiana, Terry of Arkansas and Stone of Pennsylvania, as a subcommittee, are hard at work investigating Judge Jenkins and the railroad employees. Mr. Boatner continues to promise that he will stir things up from the bottom and get in some very energetic work on the question of collecting what the Pacific railroad owes the government, but Senator Cullum and other old senators smile at skeptically as they and prophesy confidently that nothing will be done at this session.

The Coxey Bizzard.
The appropriations bills also have taken up a great deal more time than was expected, and there are some measures from the committee on public lands and Indian affairs which are expected to excite lively debate. In the recent call times, when the principal business was calling the roll and answering thereto, our only amusements were the current comments on the Breckinridge case and the freezing out of Coxey's army of invasion. According to the weather bureau, the bizzard which scattered Coxey's forces started in Texas and traveled northeastward. John Allen says, however, that it is a great mistake to suppose that Providence sent the bizzard especially to abate the malign influence of Coxey, as it was really started by the flopping of the two wings of the Texas Democracy in their late efforts to get together. The Texan members admit that the flopping was vigorous indeed, but just the same the two wings have got together, and the whole delegation expect to be returned by the usual figures, with a majority of 150 or so in the senate at large.

When President Cleveland returned from his late trip down the river, all who saw him expressed astonishment at his vivacity and greatly improved appearance, and for a few days he seemed really glad to see members and handed out the offices with something like old fashioned Democratic alacrity. Before he got through with the seigniorage bill, however, far different reports were given out, not only as to health, but as to his temper and spirit. And now it is the turn of western Democrats to be on the anxious seat. Mr. Bailey says: "It is all nonsense to try to go on this way. The Democrats have got to do just like the Republicans did on some of the questions that arose in their early days and particularly during the war—that is, 'plew around' the difficulty. In other words, the Democrats must cut loose from Cleveland's silver policy. It is all nonsense to go on pretending or trying to make ourselves believe that he is friendly to silver when we know as a matter of fact that he is hostile to it."

Another Hot Fight Looked For.
If any single standard man has been indulging the hope that either success or failure in any measure of the far reported would pacify the silver men and make them quiet for the rest of this congress, he may abandon it at once. Mr. Bland frankly acknowledges that the least little mite of success, only whets the appetite of his folks for more, and any successful opposition irritates them and excites them to greater effort. The advocates of radical measures in connection with the tariff do not go quite so far, but it is every day more evident that in the house the opposition to the senate's action on the Wilson bill is growing, and several Republicans look forward eagerly to another hot fight before the senate amendments are adopted. In short, the general situation at present may be summed up thus: The prospects of an early adjournment, if they ever amounted to anything, have completely faded away, and in their stead there is an anticipation of several fierce contests which will be prolonged until late in August anyhow and possibly much later.

MURDER IN TAMMANY HALL

The Revelry of the Carmichael Club Ends in a Riot.

New York, April 3.—From revelry to riot was but a step, and a short one at that, at the masked ball of the Carmichael club in Tammany hall at about 4 o'clock this morning.

There were upon the floor and in the boxes not far from 1,500 persons and though the bar was closed there was no lack of intoxicants, so that when the disturbance began many persons were crazed with drink. Roundsman Shay precipitated the trouble by undertaking to stop the performance that was going on in a box occupied by Eddie Hirsch, proprietor of a Coney Island dance house, and a party of his friends.

The officer was told to mind his own business, whereupon he tried to pull Hirsch from the box. Instantly a riot was made for the officer. Other policemen in the hall went to Shay's assistance. Bottles and chairs were made use of by the crowd. Clubs were swung lustily and many heads felt the force of the locusts.

In the midst of the affray the lights were extinguished, but the struggle did not even then abate. When the lights were again turned on one man was lying dead upon the stairs leading to the street. His name was Terrence Gallagher, aged 33 years, a race track tout, whose residence was 122 East 125th street. Mark Backer, a Baxter street puller-in, had his head cracked, and may die. George Bernstein, a barkeeper, was badly cut in the hand. The fight lasted until a call sent to the nearest police station had brought to the hall a detail of officers strong enough to overawe the frenzied crowd.

The police say that Gallagher's death was caused by heart disease. It is alleged that Roundsman Shay, whose efforts to stop the skirt dance in Eddie Hirsch's box brought on the row, had been drinking, and was in fact drunk. The organizer of the Carmichael club is Edward A. Corey, an ex-detective and a former partner of Billy McGilroy of "dive" fame. Corey now has a saloon at 115 East Fourteenth street. The programme shows that among the honorary are the leaders of several East Side political clubs.

A dispatch from Florence says the telegraph office at Darlington is in the hands of the military who refuse to permit the transmission of messages to newspapers. A simple message to the editor of the Charleston News and Courier, saying that the military has received a supply of blankets by express, was endorsed, "Office under military control; guard refuses to let it be sent." NEWS OF KANSAS.

City Elections Show Republican Victories Everywhere.

Women Turn Out Well at Nortonville.

OTHER STATE NEWS.

Bibulous Abilene Citizens are Duped by Sharpers.

NORTONVILLE, April 3.—Yesterday, after the liveliest municipal election ever held in this city, L. F. Randolph, who headed the Citizens' ticket, was re-elected mayor over J. B. Brown, at the head of the Independent ticket, by a majority of 27.

Neither candidate for mayor was in town during the election, the fight being made by their friends. About one-third of the vote was cast by the ladies, whose appearance at the polls clearly indicates their interest in the pending woman suffrage amendment to the state constitution.

At Pleasanton.
PLEASANTON, Kan., April 3.—The city election held yesterday was the most exciting for many years and resulted in the election of the straight Republican ticket by two to one. The interest centered on the election of mayor. Thomas J. Blakey, proprietor of the Pleasanton roller mills, was the Republican candidate, and Mrs. Annie A. Austin, who was elected in January for a short term, was a candidate on the Citizens' ticket for re-election.

Mr. Blakey received 282 votes and Mrs. Austin 140. J. H. O'Brien, a very popular merchant, headed the Democratic ticket and received 28 votes. Republicans are happy and consider it a glorious victory.

At Frankfort.
FRANKFORT, Kan., April 3.—The result of the municipal election in this city is a grand victory for young Republicans. Major Lourey, the old Democratic wheel horse, was defeated by Peter R. Wolfe for mayor by a handsome majority after a hard fought contest with the combined Democratic, mugwump and whisky elements. The Republican council is elected except one, a colored man. A large number of ladies took part in the election. This is the first Republican victory here in years.

At Enterprise.
ENTERPRISE, Kan., April 3.—The city election was held yesterday, and the woman's independent ticket was defeated by the citizens. J. F. Buhner was re-elected mayor, as were all the present officials. The woman's ticket which was put up by the advocates of woman suffrage, was defeated two to one.

At Hamlin.
HAMLIN, April 3.—The issue yesterday was joint anti-joints under the respective headings "Citizens" and "Independent." The entire vote of the town was polled and the Citizens' ticket was elected straight through.

ALMOST A PANIC.

A Revival Audience Greatly Excited by a Fire, but It Wasn't Hell Fire.

LEAVENWORTH, April 3.—Chickering hall was crowded to the door last night to hear the revivalist, Alexander Patterson. Toward the end of the services fire broke out in Tony Kegelmeyer's livery barn, only a block away. When the alarm was sounded at the fire department headquarters the worshippers began to stir, and when a big blaze shot through the roof of the barn, letting its light fall on the windows of Chickering hall, there came near being a panic.

The men were not much alarmed, but the women, some of whom at least, made wild rushes for the exits. Some screamed and others felt like fainting. The cool-headed men, seeing there was absolutely no cause for alarm, acted promptly and the stir was soon quieted.

During the excitement the Rev. W. N. Page mounted a chair and shouted: "If you people who are making such a stir will be half as afraid of hell fire as you are of the one out there it would result in the accomplishment of much good."

ABILENE INMIBERS DONE UP.

The Liquor They Expected From Kansas City Did Not Arrive.

ABILENE, April 3.—A few days ago a voluble stranger was busy doing a thriving business in the county and in Abilene, claiming to represent Johnson Brothers, a Kansas City liquor firm, and asking orders for quantities of beer and whisky. For a day or two after he had gone it was an hourly occurrence at the express office for a man to come carelessly sauntering up to the desk and ask: "Anything for me from Kansas City?" After awhile a great light dawned upon them and they realized that they were done up—some for $2, some for $3, and some for $5.

One Hundred Men Strung Up a Wife Murderer at Bakersville, N. C.

St. Louis, April 3.—A special to the Republic says: Col. English, a brutal uxoricide was taken from jail at Bakersville, N. C., by a mob and hanged.

About 3 o'clock the sheriff, whose residence is connected with the jail, was aroused from sleep for the ostensible purpose of admitting a prisoner, but when he descended to meet the supposed officers at the entrance he was seized, bound and gagged and the keys to the murderer's cell were taken from his pockets.

English was dragged from his cell and taken by a mob of 100 unmasked men and hanged just outside the town. The crime for which English was lynched was one of the most brutal ever committed in the state. English and his wife had not lived together for some time and he killed her because she would not return to him.

CHICAGO, April 3.—Thomas Gillen, a window washer, narrowly escaped a frightful fall of 100 feet from a ledge of the board of trade building today, and was rescued by a fireman in the nick of time.
